

Please do not relax the decency standards! They are seemingly the last limit-setting process we have on media. If the FCC has dismissed so many “stale” cases, then it stands to reason that many people would like a higher standard, not a lower one. Children are exposed to so many things on television already.